| TIME | PROGRAMME ACTIVITY | SUGGESTED SPEAKERS REMARKS | | | |
|-----------------|--|--|--|--|--|
| | | Diverse research and development activities in the private sector broaden the perspective on solutions to marine plastic pollution. This session will present recent developments and consider how life cycle and environmental footprint approaches can promote sustainability. | | | |
| 12:30- 13:30 | Lunch | | | | |
| 13:30- 15:00 | Gender and Social Dimensions of Marine Litter Pollution Marine plastic litter directly affects a range of stakeholders, impacting public health and wellbeing as well as economic development. It may also be a significant vulnerability multiplier in key sectors and among those already poor and marginalized. The session will share insights on the gender and human rights dimensions of marine plastic litter, and how consideration of this can contribute to fair, equitable and ethically-sound action and sustainable outcomes in the longer term. (+potentially launch of report "Marine plastic litter in East Asian Seas: Marine plastic litter in East Asian Seas: Gender, human rights and economic dimensions" | | | | |
| | Plenary Session #6 | Governance Frameworks to Manage Marine Plastics To be successful, solutions to marine plastic pollution must take into consideration institutional, legal and regulatory frameworks at international, regional and local levels. This session will discuss existing initiatives, challenges and possible paths forward in the context of South East Asia. | | | |
| 15:00- 15:30 | Coffee Break | | | | |
| 15.50 | | | | | |
| | Plenary Session | Chemicals and Plastic (including microplastics and nanoplastics) The session will explore issues around toxic or potentially toxic properties of plastics including chemical additives in plastics as well as chemicals adsorbed to plastics in the marine environment. | | | |
| 15:30- 17:00 | | | | | |
